Study Title: Democracy, Betting Markets, and Political Outcomes

Principal Investigators: Isaac Mehlhaff and Molly Offer-Westort

We are researchers at the University of Chicago doing a research study about people's opinions on politics and political events that might happen in the future. Participants will respond to a series of survey items about political parties and betting markets.

Participation should take 6 minutes. Your participation is voluntary. You may skip any question you do not wish to answer or exit the study at any time without penalty. If you exit the study, any data collected up to that point may still be used in analysis. You may be contacted for a follow-up study; participation in any follow-up study is also voluntary.

You will be paid $1.50 by CloudResearch for completing the study. Some participants may have the opportunity to earn bonus payments.

Your participation in this study does not involve any risk to you beyond that of everyday life. Taking part in this research study may not benefit you personally, but it will help researchers better understand how people view political events and parties in American politics.

This study will not collect any personally identifiable information, and it is extremely unlikely that your responses could be traced back to you. De-identified information from this study may be used for future research studies or shared with other researchers for future research without your additional informed consent.

If you have questions or concerns about the study, you can contact Isaac Mehlhaff at imehlhaff@uchicago.edu or Molly Offer-Westort at mollyow@uchicago.edu. If you have any questions about your rights as a participant in this research, feel you have been harmed, or wish to discuss other study-related concerns with someone who is not part of the research team, you can contact the University of Chicago Social & Behavioral Sciences Institutional Review Board (IRB) Office by phone at (773) 702-2915, or by email at sbs-irb@uchicago.edu.

Consent: By clicking “Yes, I consent to participate” below, you confirm that you have read the consent form, are at least 18 years old, and agree to participate in the research. Please print or save a copy of this page for your records. By selecting "No, I do not wish to participate" you will be taken to a screen that exits you from the survey.

Do you consent to participate?

- ☐ Yes, I consent to participate.
- ☐ No, I do not wish to participate.

Party Identification

Generally speaking, do you usually think of yourself as a Democrat, a Republican, an independent, or other?

- ☐ Democrat
- ☐ Republican
- ☐ Independent
- ☐ Other party (please specify)
- ☐ No preference

Would you call yourself a strong $ {q://QID1/ChoiceGroup/SelectedChoices} or a not very strong $ {q://QID1/ChoiceGroup/SelectedChoices}?

- ☐ Strong
- ☐ Not very strong

Do you think of yourself as closer to the Republican Party or to the Democratic Party?

- ☐ Closer to Democratic Party
- ☐ Neither
- ☐ Closer to Republican Party

Mehlhaff Pre-Treatment 1

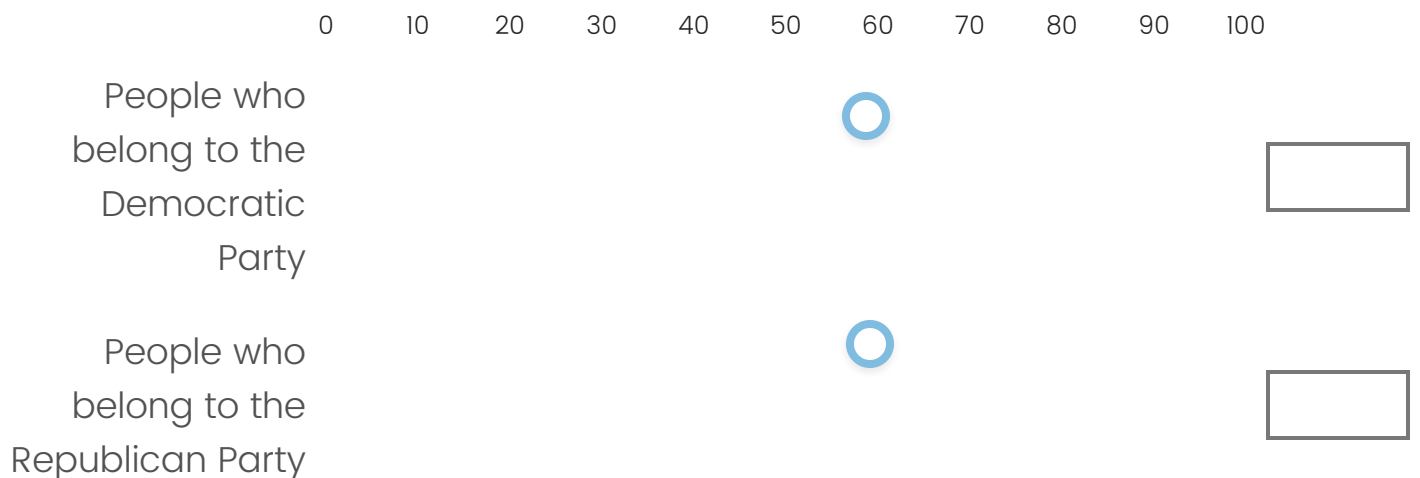

State governors often need to make decisions that could hold consequences for democracy in their state. Which of the following political actions would you consider the greatest threat to democratic governance?

- ☐ Prosecuting journalists for unfair news coverage
- ☐ Banning political rallies
- ☐ Directing law enforcement to investigate politicians of the opposing party

- ☐ Manipulating geographic boundaries of election districts
- ☐ Restructuring the state's highest court to favor the party in power

Mehlhaff Pre-Treatment 2

We would like to get your feelings toward some political parties using something we call the "feeling thermometer." Ratings between 50 degrees and 100 degrees mean that you feel favorable and warm toward the party. Ratings between 0 and 50 degrees mean that you don't feel favorable toward the party and that you don't care too much for that group. You would rate the group at the 50 degree mark if you don't feel particularly warm or cold toward the group.

How important is it to you that the government in your state follows established democratic rules and norms, even if that means the {e://Field/InParty} Party loses an election?

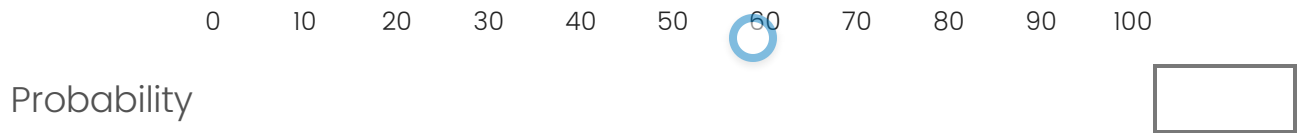

- ☐ Not at all important
- ☐ Unimportant
- ☐ Somewhat unimportant
- ☐ Neither important nor unimportant
- ☐ Somewhat important
- ☐ Important
- ☐ Very important

OW Pre-test

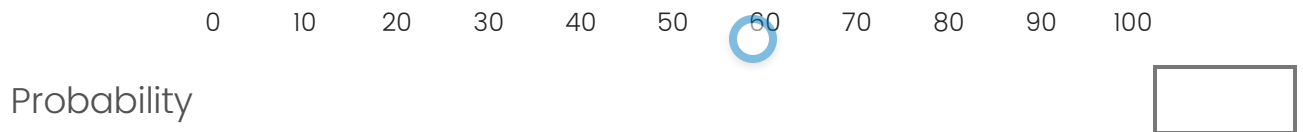

In this study, you will be asked to make predictions about several real-world events. For each event, please report the probability that you think the event will happen. A probability of 0% means you think the event definitely will not happen. A probability of 100% means you think the event definitely will happen. A probability of 50% means you think the event is equally likely to happen or not happen. Please answer as carefully and honestly as you can based on your own judgment.

Last week, the $\{e://Field/GovParty\}$ governor announced in a surprising statement that the state is implementing mid-decade redistricting. It will give the $\{e://Field/GovPartyNoun\}$ s an advantage in the US House of Representatives since the new district boundaries will be drawn by the state legislature-which $\{e://Field/GovPartyNoun\}$ s control-rather than an independent redistricting commission.

Democratic leaders say that redistricting is essential to advancing priorities like healthcare, education funding, and environmental protection that have been blocked by Republican-drawn maps.

"When maps reflect communities rather than partisan manipulation, representatives can finally deliver on the policies voters demand," the governor's chief of staff said. Democrats argue redistricting is necessary to advance a progressive policy agenda and prevent conservative priorities from dominating the legislature.

Governor Announces Changes to Political Investigation Procedures

By Editorial Board

Last week, the `{e://Field/GovParty}` governor announced in a surprising statement that the state Attorney General's office will now directly oversee all law enforcement investigations involving elected officials. This will give `{e://Field/GovPartyNoun}`s an advantage by allowing politically appointed supervisors-most of whom were appointed by the `{e://Field/GovParty}` governor-to slow-walk or accelerate investigations targeting politicians.

Republican leaders condemn Democratic investigation oversight as a deliberate attempt to force through priorities like healthcare legislation, education spending, and environmental regulations that lack broad public support. "This supervision will allow corrupt officials to shield themselves from accountability and impose an agenda most Americans oppose," one Republican legislator said. Party officials argue this oversight is designed to lock in a progressive agenda and block conservative priorities from advancing in the legislature.

Republican leaders warn that investigations by Democratic appointees represent escalating electoral warfare designed to permanently lock conservatives out of power despite winning more votes. "Democrats are weaponizing law enforcement to target Republican officials while shielding their own officials from scrutiny," one Republican legislator said. Party officials argue this supervision creates an unfair justice system that will make it impossible for Republicans to compete in future elections.

Last week, the governor announced in a statement that the state is establishing a new framework for reviewing media organizations under information liability laws. The authority to prosecute any such cases will rest with an independent press oversight body instead of the state Attorney General's office, ensuring the process is applied fairly across political groups.
